

CONFIDENTIAL

Journal - Office of Legislative Counsel
Friday - 3 February 1967

Page 2

25X1 4. [] Mrs. Childs, in the office of Representative Harold T. Johnson, called and requested three copies of the Agency telephone directory. I explained to Mrs. Childs the necessity for the classification of the Agency directory but offered to be of service to her in the event she should desire assistance.

25X1 5. [] Mr. Goodwin called to advise that Business Week magazine had been in touch with him concerning the ORR report "USSR: About to Enter the Automotive Age?" Goodwin explained that Business Week has seen a copy of the report in one of the New York universities libraries and would like to use quotations from it in an upcoming article on the Soviet economy. Goodwin was checking with us concerning the timing of the publication of the full text of the report by Representative Ashley's Subcommittee of the House Banking and Currency Committee.

I called Representative Ashley and explained the situation to him indicating that, as he knew, this document was in the public domain at the time the Subcommittee had requested it and we had no real basis for refusing Business Week's request. As a matter of fact, Business Week could reprint all or any part of the paper without the Agency's consent and without consulting us. Mr. Ashley was very understanding and said he appreciated the problem. He said he would prefer, of course, that extensive quotations from our document not appear prior to their publication but recognized this was something over which neither of us had control. He thanked me very much for contacting him on this.

I subsequently advised Mr. Goodwin of my conversation with Mr. Ashley and suggested several alternatives for him in dealing with Business Week including the possibility that Business Week refer in its article to the fact that the full report was being published by the Banking and Currency Committee. Mr. Goodwin said this gave him sufficient latitude in dealing with Business Week.

25X1 6. [] Transmitted to Mr. Kelleher, House Armed Services Committee staff, a breakdown for the [] supplemental which was requested by the Chairman for his guidance. Also provided Mr. Kelleher with a brief verbal draft response for use in answering a constituent query relating to CIA release of information on activities in Communist China. In closing, Mr. Kelleher advised that the Committee schedule has been completed for next week and that the middle of the following week, around the 15th or 16th, would appear to be the earliest that the Agency can be scheduled for appearance before the full Committee.

25X1

CONFIDENTIAL